GERMANS CHECKED AT AISNE

Advance Stopped by Combined Artillery and Machine Gun Fire—Germans Report Three British Airships Chased into Sea.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—Three British aeroplanes which took part in the recent raid over Ostend and Zeebrugge were destroyed by Germans, it was unofficially reported here. Among the items given out by the government news bureau was the following:

"Reports printed in Berlin, Switzerland, newspapers state that only four of the seven English aeroplanes which bombed Ostend and Zeebrugge returned to their base. Three of the British machines were surrounded by German airmen and chased into the sea."

International News Service Correspondent.

Paris, Feb. 1.—French airmen, braving a terrific fire from German high-angle guns, have bombed the headquarters of General von Heeringen, commander of the German army of the center, at Laon. Severe damage was done to the German works at Laon, La Fere, Crepy and Coucy. All of these points are situated north and northeast of Soissons in the now famous elbow formed by the junction of the Aisne and Oise rivers.

The German attempts to swing across the Aisne in the angle of the river at Venizel had for its object the capture of a spur of railway line running from Venizel into Soissons.

Aerial activity increased. The German efforts broke down under the combined artillery and machine gun fire of the French, who held strongly fortified positions on the heights flanking the south bank of the Aisne at Venizel.

Official dispatches from all sections of the battle front show the increase of aerial activity among the French, British and Germans.

Fairly violent artillery duels are reported from Ypres, West Flanders, Arras, Reims and the heights of the Meuse.

Despite fog and cold weather, the French pressure in the Vosges and in upper Alsace is continuing without any cessation.

At the other end of the battle line, upon the coast of the North sea, the Belgian, French and British forces are pressing vigorously to push back the extreme end of the German right flank.

STATE'S WARDS FLEE FIRE

Three Hundred Inmates of Massachusetts Infirmary Driven Out in Zero Weather.

Lowell, Mass., Feb. 1.—Three hundred men, inmates at the state infirmary at Tewksbury, six miles from here, were driven out into the zero air by fire in a combination clothes storage and dormitory.

Five hundred other men and women inmates of adjoining dormitories, panic-stricken by the flames, overpowered the attendants and fled into the big

The picture above is that of Miss Anna Bell Ward, the young proprietress of the Alhambra Theatre, of this city.

Miss Ward is a Kentuckian by birth and although just past 19 years of age in December, she is a girl of many resources and much ability. From the age of ten years she has been the "daddy" of a family of six, her father being an invalid since that time. She is a self-made girl and deserves much credit for having such business qualities as she possesses in so marked a degree. Miss Ward is a talented singer and studied under the direction of L. O. We wish her much success in her new undertaking, for she deserves much credit for being such an enterprising young woman. She is receiving much social attention.

There are 2,900 inmates at the state infirmary and those who remained in their quarters were greatly frightened. It was only by heroic efforts that the attendants succeeded in restraining more than 500 from fleeing from dormitories untouched by the fire.

SEES "DEAL" WITH JAPS

Hobson Thinks Purchased Peace Bought by Agreeing to Retire From Philippines.

Washington, Feb. 1.—In a final appeal in the house for a larger navy, Representative Hobson of Alabama declared it was his firm conviction that the United States has maintained peace with Japan only by giving assurances of speedy retirement from the Philippines. Moreover, in a part of his speech which went into the record without actually being delivered on the floor, the Alabama representative said he believed that when the American fleet went around the world during the Roosevelt administration it was allowed to go to Japan only with the assurance that it would be out of the Pacific ocean by a fixed time.

Mystery in Man's Death.

Taylor, Mo., Feb. 1.—The body of a well-dressed man found on a farm near here furnished the sheriff with a mystery. A note on the body said the man's name was Herman Huenpohl of Quincy, Ill., and that he had "committed a terrible crime which sooner or later would be discovered."

ROCKEFELLER, JR.,
HIT BY LABOR HEAD

J. R. Lawson Charges Oil King's Son Ignores Toilers Even While They Starve.

RAKES THE FOUNDATION, TOO

Official of United Mine Workers Says Insurance Should Be Substituted Philanthropy for Justice—Tells Suffering.

New York, Feb. 1.—Coming almost straight from the office of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., where he had a "friendly chat" with him over conditions in the mines of Colorado, John R. Lawson, a member of the executive board of the United Mine Workers, for the district including Colorado, read before the federal commission on industrial relations a scathing indictment of Mr. Rockefeller and the attitude he had displayed before the commission.

The policies and purposes of the $100,000,000 Rockefeller foundation and the recent utterances of young Mr. Rockefeller on the witness stand were assailed by Mr. Lawson.

Among other things Mr. Lawson asserted "a skillful attempt is being made to substitute philanthropy for justice."

Money "Withheld" From Toilers.

In assailing the Rockefeller foundation he asserted that one of the causes of industrial discontent was that very philanthropy and the feeling that the millions "spread over the world in showy generosity" were derived from the "money withheld from the wages of the American working class."

Mr. Lawson criticized young Rockefeller for his lack of knowledge of conditions among employees of the Colorado Fuel company, and said he was "equally as ignorant and indifferent as his trusted executives."

"Your body can well afford to let the testimony of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., bring your investigation to an end," Mr. Lawson told the commission.

Out of his mouth came a reason for every discontent that agitates the laboring class in the United States today, and if remedies are provided for the injustices that he disclosed a long step will be taken away from industrial disturbance.

When the men entered the store they demanded that the three clerks hold up their hands. The clerks complied and were then gagged and bound by two of the men while the third kept them covered with two revolvers.

According to the clerks, one of them had just finished opening the safe when the men entered. Thinking that they wished either to borrow money or redeem a pledge, one stepped forward to question them. As he did so he looked into the muzzle of a revolver while the other two men ran to the rear of the store to look after the other two clerks. The three were then bound and gagged and carried to a rear room, where they were left on the floor while the safe was looted of the most valuable pledges.

Philanthropy "For Birds."

The philanthropy of the Rockefellers Mr. Lawson referred to as follows: "Health for China, a refuge for birds, food for Belgians, pensions for New York widows, university training for the elect—and never a thought or a dollar for thousands of men, women and children who starved in Colorado; for the widows robbed of husbands, children of their mothers."

"There are thousands of Mr. Rockefeller's employees in Colorado who wish to God they were in Belgium to be fed, or a bird to be tenderly cared for."

Mr. Lawson's statement was a rehearsal of the testimony of young Mr. Rockefeller and a vigorous arraignment of him for not having investigated the Colorado situation in detail.

ARGENTINE WARSHIP MANNED

$11,000,000 Superdreadnaught Built at Camden, N. J., Goes Into Commission.

Philadelphia, Feb. 1.—The Argentine government's new $11,000,000 superdreadnaught, Moreno, went into commission here. It was built at Camden, N. J., and is a sister ship of the Rivadavia, recently completed at Boston. The crew of 1,000 men and 86 officers arrived here on two navy transports on January 17 and the Argentine government also sent on the transports its exhibits for the San Francisco fair. Indian relics, bronze art objects, grain and other products of Argentina were included.

NEW YORK TENEMENTS BURN

One Boy Killed, Seven Persons Missing and Thirty Families Homeless in Incendiary Blaze.

New York, Feb. 1.—Fire wrecked ten tenement houses in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn, causing the death of a boy and making 30 families homeless. Seven persons were missing, but it was believed that they had gone to the homes of friends.

The property loss was estimated at between $50,000 and $100,000. The police said they thought the fire was of incendiary origin.

Aged Woman Seeks Divorce.

Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 1.—Charging cruelty, inhuman treatment and improper conduct, Mrs. Sarah G. Schellhorn of Weehawken filed a suit for absolute divorce against Joseph W. Schellhorn, a wealthy real estate operator, who has been more or less prominent in Hudson county politics for a number of years. She is sixty-two years old; he is sixty-three. They have two sons.

ORPHANS INJURED

WHEN BUILDING OF NEW ORLEANS ASYLUM FALLS IN TERRIBLE WINDSTORM.

Towboat 1. R. Patton Sinks—Houses Unroofed—Fences Blown Down Doing Enormous Damage.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

New Orleans.—More than a score of children were injured, a number seriously, when one of the buildings of St. Anthony's orphan asylum collapsed during a windstorm. Ten of the children are in the Charity Hospital, several of them at the point of death and others maimed for life.

The storm wrought such other damage in and near New Orleans. Among the losses was that of the iron hull towboat 1. R. Patton, which was swamped by big waves in the river and sank in her dock. Several of the big sheds were partially unroofed. Fences were blown down, branches broken off the trees and other damage caused by the wind, which obtained a maximum of 52 miles an hour. The structure that fell was not completed and was a big frame building. Many children were playing on the ground floor and others were engaged at work on the second story. Without warning the structure swayed and splintered to the earth. Scores were trapped. Repeated police and fire alarms brought many official workers to aid the volunteer rescue corps, but it was more than an hour before all the sufferers had been taken from the structure. The hospital is in a thickly settled residential section and the sea was back of willing hands to aid the children in every way possible.

NAVAL BASE MAY BE LOCATED.

Paris.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Temps hears from a trustworthy source that German submarines are cruising in Norwegian waters, contrary to international law. It is believed that the German navy has selected islands farthest away from the coast, and reconnoitered during the maneuvers held for several years past off the Norwegian coast.

FRANCE LOSES TORPEDO BOAT.

Berlin.—The Imperial Press Bureau makes the following announcement on the part of the German Admiralty: "The French torpedo boat No. 218 was sunk by the German submarine U-30 on the night of Feb. 1. Thirty-five members of the crew were saved and five were drowned."

RICHMOND, KY., WEDNESDAY, FEB. 3, 1915.

JUDGE J. M. BENTON.

In this issue appears the formal announcement of Judge J. M. Benton as a candidate for re-election to the office of Circuit Judge for this district. There also appears over his signature the platform on which he runs.

Judge Benton has held this office since the death of Judge Scott. He succeeded a very able jurist and one who was exceedingly popular with the people. He took up the office and conducted it as though there had been no interruption and he has acquired the confidence and entire satisfaction of his friends, and has fulfilled every prediction which they made for him. He is eminently qualified for the position, not only from a legal standpoint, but from the standpoint of general information as well. He is an extensive reader and hard student and is well prepared for the discharge of his duties in his various phases.

His reputation as a jurist has gone far beyond the confines of his district, and his name is a familiar one all over the State. He is a jurist of recognized ability. He is an exceedingly patient judge, both with litigant and lawyer, and is very accommodating to both. He dispatches business promptly and has kept his docket reasonably well cleared. In his announcement, contained in another column, he points out to the people where he has saved the State in criminal matters alone the sum of $5,000 per year. This is highly commendable and will be remembered by the voters.

Judge Benton, besides being a Madisonian, married an exceptionally handsome lovely and accomplished Madison girl, Miss Bessie Smith, a daughter of the late Dr. Curran C. Smith, of Waco. He had a large blood relationship in this county, and by his marriage he acquired another very strong relationship. On his own side of the house, as well as that of his wife, he is connected with the very best people of the county and district; men and women who were pioneers and who have always been of the best citizenship of the State.

These facts entitle Judge Benton to the careful and kindly consideration of the voters of this county, and we have no doubt that when the political conflict is over, that his friends and relatives will have made it manifest that they went to the polls.

Judge Benton has made his platform broad and strong and he throws down the gage of battle to his worthy opponent.

Fayette county, which is furnishing a candidate for Governor, Secretary of State, Superintendent of Public Instruction and Commissioner of Agriculture, seems to have forgotten Auditor, Treasurer, Attorney General and a few others. —E-town News.

BIRTHS

Born, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Goins, of Baldwin, are rejoicing over the arrival of a son at their home, christened Herbert.

Born, To the wife of Jas. H. Cruse, on January 20, a girl.

Born, To the wife of Cecil Wilcox, a boy, named Cecil, Jr., on January 14th.

Born, To Mr. and Mrs. James White, on January 11th, a girl, named Flossie.

WORKS BOTH WAYS.

Please hand us that dollar so we can "settle down and pay up." Then all of us will smile and smile.

Death of Mrs. J. P. White.

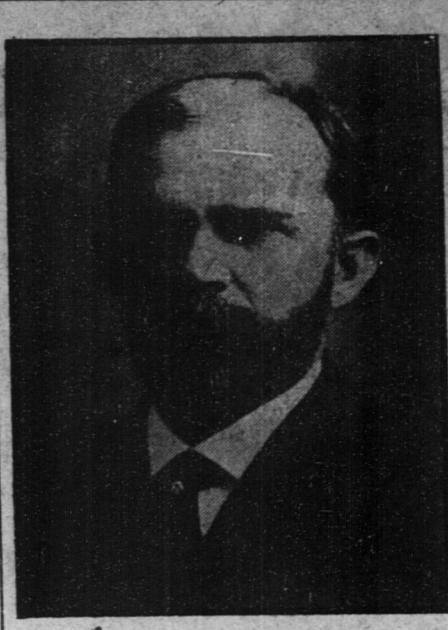

Mrs. Jas. P. White, one of the oldest and best-known women of the county, died at 1 o'clock Monday morning at her home in the country, her death being due to pneumonia. Mrs. White was a gentle, christian woman, a kind neighbor, an affectionate wife and mother.

For many years she had been a faithful member of the Mt. Pleasant Christian church. She was nearly 72 years of age and had been married 49 years. She is survived by her aged mother, Mrs. Mary Burgh, who is 92 years old, and by her husband and seven children.—Robert and Walker, and Mary W. Sullivan, Mrs. Leonard Minter, Mrs. John McCord, Mrs. Munday and Mrs. Minter. Mrs. White's death marks the passing of one of the ladies of the old school, hospitable and unselfish, who was greatly loved, and greatly will be missed. The funeral was held on Tuesday at 10 a. m. at Mt. Pleasant and was conducted by Rev. C. K. Marshall, after which her burial took place in Richmond Cemetery.

To the husband and children, all hearts go out in tender sympathy.

HOW TO TREAT CROUP EXTERNALLY

Don't dose delicate little stomachs with nauseating drugs—just rub VICKS' Croup and SALVE over the throat and chest. It soothes the breathing in easy and in five minutes the worst cases are relieved. The heat of the body releases antiseptic vapors which are inhaled with each breath, loosening the croup phlegm and cleansing the air passages. Absolutely harmless, full instructions on wrapper. At all druggists, 25c. box and 50c. jar. Special sample request Vicks Chemical Co., Greensboro, N. C.

Circuit Court Convenes.

Judge Benton Presiding.

Circuit Court opened Tuesday morning, Hon. J. M. Benton presiding, and Hon. B. A. Crutcher, Commonwealth's Attorney, on hand.

Judge Benton delivered a remarkably strong charge to the grand jury, from which we quote as follows:

"My sermon on clean elections this morning will be a brief one. This question has been urged upon the consciences of all the grand juries of this district for the last two years and I have found them eager to act. This grand jury may find nothing to do along this line, but it is a question which must be permitted to grow cold.

Last week I heard in a religious revival at Winchester a most impressive sermon on the subject of the Great American Sin, which the preacher said was the sin of neglect. As I listened to that remarkable sermon, I could not avoid the conviction that we people here in Kentucky, in this district and in this county, have too long neglected the great sin of American politics, this evil, this corrupt, this criminal practice of election frauds, which we have permitted to grow and to flourish.

I have stood and will continue to stand for a rigid enforcement of the criminal laws without respect to persons, applying them to the rich and the poor, the high and the low, alike.

I have stood and will continue to stand for clean elections, demanding that election offenders shall be dealt with just as all other law breakers are.

Clean elections elevate the standard of civic purity and constitute an advance step in the uplift of humanity. The public conscience has been aroused on this question and its progress must be forward, not backward. It is a great fight and I am proud to be on the right side.

I may not be able to see all the voters of the district in person, as my official duties, which I shall in no wise neglect, demand practically all of my time. I must therefore rely largely upon my friends, in each county, to aid me in the race and guard my interests, assuring them that I shall prosecute the campaign with vigor, so that every voter in the district may be made fully acquainted with all the issues involved before he comes to cast his vote.

Gratefully thankful for the loyalty that has been accorded to the nomination, I earnestly ask the voters of the district who approve my record and feel that it merits endorsement, to again give me their cordial support, pledging to them the best service that my ripened experience enables me to give.

Respectfully,
J. M. BENTON.

For Assessor.

We are authorized to announce Cyrus T. Stone as a candidate for the nomination for Assessor of Madison county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

MARRIED

Mr. Boyd Douglas and Miss Sallie Short, two well known young people of Newby, were united in marriage on last Thursday afternoon by Rev. G. C. Stoker of Richmond. Their friends wish them a long and happy journey on the sea of matrimony.

Big Show at The Alhambra.

Thursday the public will be presented with its favorite movie star, Francis X. Bushman, in "The Battle of Love." This is from a prize story by which Mr. Bushman was voted the most popular actor in America. So it will be quite a treat for the moving picture fans.

Miss Ward sings today—Wednesday. Hear her in "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." Five reels of special features will be shown. Don't miss them.

Monster Closing Out Sale.

Jno. R. Gibson & Co., the dry goods merchants, are to hold a closing-out sale which starts this coming Friday morning. Mr. G. Roth, of St. Louis, who is conducting the sale for them, arrived on Thursday last and has been busy since preparing the sale. He, no doubt, will meet with the success, as you will recall, the sales he held for John R. Gibson & Co. and J. S. Stanifer last June which were both the most successful special sales ever held in this section. He is rated as one of the most experienced sales promoters in this country, having conducted special sales in every State in the Union, with the exception of two Eastern States. Due credit should be given Mr. Gibson, one of our cleverest citizens, who has been in business here for many years. A call from all of his past customers will be appreciated in this closing-out sale, where there will be some great bargains offered every hour of the sale.

Besides being one of the best of sales promoters, Mr. Roth is quite an athlete and high diver. He jumped from the Valley View railroad bridge while here last June.

Church Notes

The attendance at the First Christian church Sunday-school was 248, good for a stormy Sunday. The pastor will preach Sunday morning next at the regular hour. Sunday service at night to welcome Rev. Reynolds, of the Baptist church.

C. W. B. M. of the First Christian church meets Wednesday: Ladies' Circle meet Thursday. Both meetings at the church at 3 p. m.

Sunday night, at the Christian church a service of welcome will be held for Rev. J. R. Reynolds, the new Baptist pastor. Brief addresses will be made by the pastors, all choirs will unite in the song service and all the men of the district churches will sit in the center section of the auditorium. We hope all will join in the spirit of the occasion and give Mr. Reynolds a genuine welcome to Richmond.

Miss Lucia Burnam has presented the Sunday-school of the First Presbyterian church with a handsome piano.

At a business meeting held at the First Christian church it was decided to take a collection each Sunday night for the benefit of the Associated Charities.

There will be a meeting for ministers, Bible school teachers, superintendents and church workers in general, both men and women, at Providence Christian church, in Jessamine county, Feb. 8-12, which will be conducted on the institute plan. Some notable speakers will be present, including Rev. J. W. Street, of Macina, Ill., and Dr. H. C. Garrison, of Danville. The people of this county are cordially invited to attend.

Last Sunday morning and evening, in spite of the inclement weather, a large audience was out to hear Dr. Reynolds. His sermons are full of truth and inspiration and we would be glad to have everybody enjoy them. There will be something interesting for the young people every Sunday evening at 6 o'clock in the lecture room.

Burglars Busy.

Burglars were out on the "pinch" last Saturday night and visited many West Main street homes. At the residence of Mrs. John F. Wagers they made a rich haul, and took from Miss Smith, a young Normal student, the sum of $51; from Miss Minnie Wagers, $3 and $1.60 from Mrs. Wagers. They also visited the home of Judge Jennings Greenleaf and rifled his clothing. From there they evidently went to the residence of Judge A. R. Burnam at about 8 o'clock, but Judge Tony Burnam, hearing them at the window, procured his revolver and proceeded with target practice, but the shots went wild. From there the thieves went to the residence of W. Neale Bennett, but secured no loot.

After 22 Years.

Mr. Wm. Mellon, the merchant prince of College Hill, after 22 years business success, has sold his stock of goods to Ginter Bros., of that place. Mr. Mellon says he wants to take it easy for a time; will visit his mother in California next summer and take in the Panama Exposition. Messrs. Ginter Bros. are well known and popular men and with their large connection, business ability and personal popularity will hold every dollar's worth of the house has heretofore enjoyed. Good luck to the retiring man and abundant success to the incoming ones.

Col. Perry Speaks.

The Commercial Club, together with a large number of representative citizens, assembled at the Elks' Club room Thursday night to hear an address from Col. R. R. Perry, of Winchester, in reference to the Boone Trail. Mr. C. F. Higgins, president of the Club, presided over the meeting and introduced the speaker in a happy way. Col. Perry is probably one of the best visited men in Kentucky on the Boone Trail, and he asserts that the same comes from Rockcastle county through the county of Madison nearby Richmond to Boonesboro. He urged the people to get busy while the matter was being agitated in Congress and secure this road.

A committee was appointed, Hon. W. B. Smith, being named as the chairman, to report at a later meeting of the Club some tangible and practical method of procedure to secure the road for this county. There will be another meeting on February 11, and all our good citizens are urged to attend.

French Remedy for Stomach Troubles

The leading doctors of France have for years used a prescription of vegetable oils for chronic stomach trouble and constipation that acts like a charm. One dose will convince. Severe cases of years' standing are often greatly benefited within 24 hours. So many people are getting surprising results that we feel it is our duty to bring this remedy to the attention of our people. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere with the positive understanding that your money will be refunded without question or quibble if ONE bottle fails to give you absolute satisfaction.

Farmers' Big Rally.

Dr. Fred Mutchler, of State University, president of the Kentucky Farmers Union, will speak at the Court House in Richmond, Saturday afternoon, Feb. 13, at 1:30 o'clock, on topics of vital interest to every landlord and tenant in Madison county.

Dr. Mutchler is without doubt the best informed man in Kentucky on farming, farm conditions and farm possibilities in this State. For years he has owned and operated a farm in Western Kentucky and has been a highly paid official of the Government Agricultural Department. His farm extension work in the last three or four years has done more to advance agriculture in Kentucky than any one thing this State has had the benefit of in a generation. He knows your soil and what it will produce better than you do. Hear what he has to say about it.

All over the State farmers are organizing and discussing control and better prices for tobacco and other farm products. This meeting will mark the beginning of the forward movement in the county of Madison. Be there—Saturday afternoon, Feb. 13, at 1:30 p. m.

What the Farmers' Union can do for the farmer, Dr. Mutchler will explain to you at the following places:

Richmond Saturday, Feb. 13, at 1:30.

Cottontown, Monday night, Feb. 15, at 7:30 p. m.

Burton School House, Tuesday night, 16th, at 7:30.

Newby court house, Wednesday night, 17th, at 7:30.

College Hill, Thursday, 18th, at 7:30.

Waco High School, Friday night, 19, at 7:30.

These talks will be full of valuable information for the farmer. T. H. Collins, the farm demonstrator, will be on hand and have something worth telling. Everybody invited. J. Ed Tudor, 5-2t President.

From The Normal.

(Maude Gibson)

Miss Lella McKee has gone to Roanoke, Va., to visit a sick friend. Miss Kathleen Roark accompanied by Miss Johns, of Lexington, spent the term end with Dean Roark at Sullivan Hall. The young ladies are students at Sayre.

The Opening Reception of the third term of school was held in Ruric Nevil Roark Hall on Saturday night.

The Carpenters Literary Society gave a delightful informal reception on Monday night. The affair was particularly enjoyable because of the return of many old members who had been out teaching during the past school term.

The Basket ball boys are glad to welcome back Calvin McCowan, one of the stars of last year.

The musical entertainment given by Mr. Roy Young on Tuesday night was unusual affair and greatly enjoyed by all present. The gentleman proved himself an artist of high order and master of tone modulations. His violin made from the bones of a wildcat, attracted much attention and his reproduction of the music of bird and insect was profoundly interesting.

Dr. Randall of the Department of Education in Washington, whose special work is School Gardening, visited the Normal on Saturday and stayed over Sunday. He was highly pleased with work being done in our school under direction of Professor Pullen.

RED HOUSE.

Miss Elizabeth Marshall has returned from Lexington, where she visited relatives and friends for several weeks.

Rev. James filled his appointment at the Red House Baptist church Saturday and Sunday. We wish him a successful year in this, his new charge.

Mrs. Maurice Ashley and little daughter, Lucille, of Richmond, visited their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Griggs, from Saturday till Monday.

A party of young folks from Red House went in a grand old sleigh to the picture show, "The Lure," at Richmond, Monday night. After the show, refreshments were partaken of at "Joe's" by the party. Those who went were—Misses Elizabeth Marshall, Anna Burgh, Burnam Taylor, Kate Brown, Mary Cosby; Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Griggs and Messrs. Alex and Andrew Turpin and Martin Woods.

SILVER CREEK.

Miss Anna Jones, of Richmond, spent several days with her aunt, Mrs. Samuel Meeks.

Mrs. Arthur Mitchell and son, Joseph, arrived Saturday to be the guest of her husband, who is employed by the United American Co.

Miss Madrus Farris is spending several days in Richmond, the guest of Miss Nanette Mass Davidson.

Mrs. Alice Dunn, of Friendsville, visited relatives and friends here.

The friends of Mr. Wm. West were greatly shocked to hear of his sudden death, which occurred last Wednesday morning, at his home near here. Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Miss Dexter H. White is visiting in Richmond.

Miss Mary Wagers was the guest last week of her sister, Mrs. W. C. West.

Richmond Filled With Students.

The third term at the Normal opened Tuesday, January 26, with the biggest enrollment in the history of the school. Students began to arrive on Thursday previous to the opening day and before Wednesday night more than eight hundred people had matriculated. From one county thirty students came in a body. During the opening days, the transfer company was busy, running special transfers to take Normal students to the school. On Wednesday morning, the chapel was so crowded that the students were compelled to sit on the floor, but the authorities of the school secured 150 additional chapel chairs which were installed on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Charles A. Keith has been employed by the school as extra teacher during the big terms. Class Organization has been perfected and on the campus the crowds are being handled perfectly. The dormitories are filled to overflowing and hundreds of young men and women have found accommodations in town. The good citizens of Richmond have been very enthusiastic in their support during the rush time and more homes than ever before have been thrown open to Normal students.

Students continue to come in daily and enrollment is expected to go over a thousand this week. On Sunday the different churches of the City were thronged with Normal students. In one Sunday School class, despite the inclement weather, there were one hundred and twenty-five Normal students enrolled.

Richmond people are doing everything within their power to care for these young men and women, in every possible way.

Some tobacco warehouses pick out a few of the best crops they have sold in the past few years and quote them—but that method does not give you a line on the present market. We quote, every week, crops which have been sold within a few days, and only mention tobacco of average quality—the kind you probably have. We have crops that average higher than our weekly figures but don't quote them as such crops are scarce this year. Some sales made during the week of January 25-30

Tudor Kills Negro.

Mack Tudor, formerly of this county, now conducting a livery stable in Lexington, shot and instantly killed a negro named James Ingram. The shooting was done in self defense. The negro had refused to pay a small bill and when Tudor attempted to collect it, after repeated demands, the negro struck him and knocked him down, inflicting a very painful wound on the ear. Tudor then procured his revolver and asked the negro to pay the bill. The negro refused and started at Tudor with his knife open, when Tudor fired and killed him. Mr. Tudor is a brother of Cyrus and Humphrey Tudor, of this county, and has many relatives here.

Death of Mrs. Stoner.

In the Mt. Sterling Advocate, of Wednesday, is a beautiful tribute to the memory of Mrs. Mary Stoner, who passed peacefully away at her home, on Monday morning, following a brief illness.

Mrs. Stoner was the widow of the late Peter Stoner, who died many years ago. She was a woman of high christian character and no woman in the county was more greatly loved. She was known far and near for her charitable deeds and truly "her good works will follow her."

In speaking of her one friend was heard to say, "She made everyone happy," and what sweeter thing than this could be said of any life?

Mrs. Stoner is survived by three sisters—Mrs. Berry, Mrs. Burgin and Mrs. Clay; and one brother, Mr. Wm. Phelps, all of whom are related to the Phelps and DeJarnette families of this county.

In Society

The regular meeting of the Boonesborough Chapter, D. A. R., was held on Monday afternoon with Mrs. A. R. Burnam. Mrs. M. B. Arbuckle read a paper, delightfully written and full of valuable information, on "The Armament of Germany and France." Mrs. Waller Bennett read an article on "Pioneer Life in Kentucky," which was written some time ago by Mrs. W. L. Beardsley, of Harrodsburg. The paper received such complimentary mention that members of the Woman's Club, of Richmond, were anxious to hear it read, so Mrs. Bennett kindly borrowed it for this occasion. It was charmingly written, abounding in picturesque descriptions and graceful imagery, and the Society is deeply indebted to Mrs. Beardsley and also, Mrs. Bennett.

The Teachers' Training Class of the Methodist Sunday School held a very enjoyable meeting at the home of Mrs. Will Langford on last Friday evening. The subject was "The Child From Three to Six Years of Age, and The Kind of Stories He Likes Best." The series of questions, "Wise and Otherwise," propounded by the hostess, afforded much amusement. The guests were then invited to the dining room, where delicious refreshments were served. A Jack Horner pie, which would have pleased the heart of Mother Goose herself, was the last course.

One of the prettiest events of the season was the marriage of Miss Nellie Lanter and Mr. Cleveland Wells, which was solemnized at the bride's home at College Hill, Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock, the Rev. E. W. Summers, of Georgetown, officiating. The bride is the attractive and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Lanter, and one of Madison county's most successful teachers. The groom is the son of Mrs. William Wells, of Nicholasville, and in every way worthy of the one of his choice. The bridesmaids were Miss Beulah Wilson and Miss Sallie Wells, of Nicholasville, and the groomsmen were Mr. Foster Clark and Mr. Jay Lanter, of Waco. The bridal party left immediately after the ceremony for Nicholasville, where they will make their future home.

The fourth birthday of little Minnie Lynn Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ashley Evans, of Balboa, was delightfully celebrated from 3 to 5 p. m., on last Saturday, January 16. Over 60 little friends from Ancon, Balboa and Corral gathered together to wish Miss Evans many more happy birthdays and to help make the afternoon one long to be remembered as the largest and jolliest child's party ever held on the isthmus. The reception was held in the basement of the Evens home, in one of the new concrete quarters, which was very nicely decorated with tropical plants, Christmas greens, and the national colors. Eight small tables were used for the refreshments and were so arranged as to form a circle. The little hostess presided at the center tables—Panama Star and Herald.

Mrs. J. Hale Dean again very hospitably entertained the CECILIAN CLUB on Wednesday afternoon. Miss Julia White was to have been hostess, but was unable, on account of her absence.

A lovely miscellaneous programme was given.

Mrs. Alex Denny entertained the YOUNG LADIES' BRIDGE on Saturday afternoon at her beautiful new home on Lancaster Ave. The club re-organized at this meeting and after the games enjoyed a lovely salad course with tea.

Mrs. D. L. Cobb was hostess of the "NULLO" on Tuesday, at which time Miss Mollie Fife won the trophy. Mrs. Hale entertained the club yesterday.

Mrs. M. C. Kellogg entertained with a series of beautiful parties in compliment to her guest, Miss Kate Whitaker, of Lexington.

One afternoon was devoted to NULLO, and on Thursday and Friday, BRIDGE was the form of entertainment.

A handsome lunch was served on each occasion and the guests enjoyed, as they always do, Mrs. Kellogg's charming hospitality.

The next meeting of the WOMAN'S CLUB, will be on Monday, Feb. 8th, and the programme will be furnished by Prof. Wren J. Grinstead and Mrs. Eugene Walker. Come everybody and if you stay away, you will regret it. Two-thirty, sharp!

Paris was chosen as the meeting place for the Third district group of Women's Clubs, Saturday, February 6. Frankfort, Georgetown, Ashland and Berea lost in the fight for the honor of playing host to the delegates at the first district meeting. Announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, the chairman, that Paris had been decided upon as the meeting place. Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Smith will discuss the General Federation.

Mrs. G. W. Pickels entertained the Sherwood Club most pleasantly on Saturday afternoon at her home on Third street. The subject for the meeting was Chopin and Schumann, and the programme was unusually attractive. Those who took part were: Mrs. Pickels and Miss Dorothy Perry, who played a duet; Misses Duncan Foster, Elizabeth Burnam and Mary Lee Douglas, instrumental solos; Miss Cynthia Davol, vocal solo; Miss Elizabeth Hagan, paper on Chopin, and Miss Austin Lilly, one on Schumann. The musicale closed with a pretty lunch.

The Five Hundred Club was charmingly entertained on Monday afternoon by Miss Mary Louise Deatherage.

At the meeting of the Boonesborough Chapter D. A. R., on Monday afternoon, Mrs. Lewis Neale was chosen as delegate to represent the Chapter at the Congress which meets in Washington in April, with Mrs. C. D. Chenault, of Lexington, as alternate.

At the district meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs, which meets in Paris, Saturday, the 6th day of February, Miss Helen Bennett and Mrs. Grant E. Lilly go as delegates from the Woman's Club of Richmond.

Maupin-Park.

Miss Mary Maupin, the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Maupin, of this county, was married to Mr. C. Hume Park, of Hermiston, Oregon, last Wednesday evening at the family residence. The ceremony was performed by Dr. E. G. McDougall in a most impressive manner.

The couple had been sweethearts for several years, and about five years ago the groom went to Oregon, where he has made good in a financial way. Correspondence has been kept up between the two. Mr. Park was called to this place by the serious illness of his grandfather, Mr. George W. Park, and the young couple decided to be married. Only the immediate family and relatives were present. Miss Maupin is a handsome young woman of many fine traits of character, and is a grand-daughter of Capt. John

HOLY SHRINES OF FREEDOM

Headquarters Occupied by Washington Throughout the Country Are to Be Preserved.

THROUGH the efforts of the various patriotic societies many of the old houses made famous by Washington as his headquarters during the war of independence, have been preserved and are now suitably marked for the information of posterity. During that long struggle for freedom Washington used perhaps a hundred or more houses for this purpose in various parts of the country. Many have disappeared under the ravages of time, but about two score of them have been saved. It was in these houses that he planned his battles and strategy; it was in them that independence was achieved.

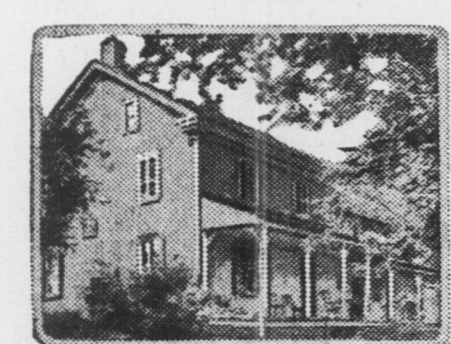

Jumel Mansion, Washington's New York Headquarters.

houses that were occupied by Washington. First Washington lived in the residence set apart for principals of Harvard college. Then he moved to the house of a fugitive Loyalist, John Vassall. Later this became the residence of Henry W. Longfellow, the great poet, and here were written many of his works since become world famous.

Washington had many houses in New York. None is more beautiful than the building now known as the Jumel mansion. This was his headquarters from September 16 to October 21, 1776. It is also rich in memories of Aaron Burr, who married the widow of Stephen Jumel. Jumel gained possession of the house when Roger Morris and his wife fled because their Tory sympathies threatened to get them in difficulties. It was Mrs. Morris, who as Mary Phillips, George Washington wooed in vain.

At Neshaminy, 20 miles north of Philadelphia, is a headquarters of Washington rich in historic memories. It is a rough stone building, two stories in height, located near the bridge over the Little Neshaminy creek. Here Washington held an important council of war, at which for the first time the young Marquis de Lafayette took his place as one of Washington's advisers.

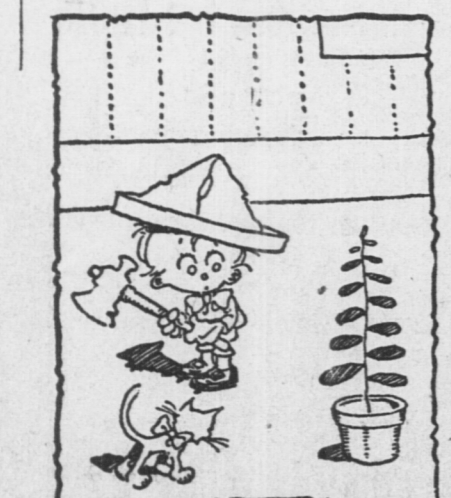

The Neshaminy Headquarters.

when the fortunes of the cause went to their very lowest.

On the Hudson is the venerable structure that did Washington service at Newburgh. This had a military use. It was situated on a bluff that overlooks the river for eight miles to West Point.

MAKING THE BEST OF IT

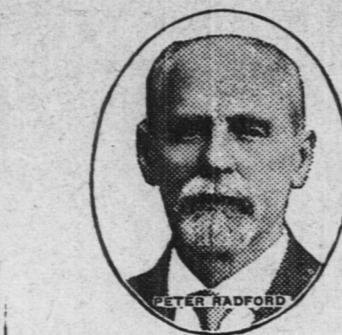

Bobby—it ain't much of a cherry tree, but as long as I'm playing George Washington it'll have to do.

Washington's Birthplace Gone.

Washington was born February 22, 1732, at Bridges Creek, Westmoreland county, Va. The home in which he was born burned down in 1735. No vestige remains, only a stone placed there by George Washington Parke Custis to mark the site of the "old low-pitched farm house."

Winter Doubles Work.

In summer the work of eliminating poisons and acids from the blood is helped by perspiration. In cold weather, with little outdoor work or exercise to cause sweating, the kidneys have to do double work. Foley Kidney Pills help overworked, weak and diseased kidneys to filter and cast out of the blood the waste matter that causes pain in side or back, rheumatism, lumbago, stiffness of joints, sore muscles and other ills resulting from improper elimination. THE COUNTY FAIR

By Peter Radford
Lecturer National Farmers' Union

The farmer gets more out of the fair than anyone else. The fair to a city man is an entertainment; to a farmer it is education. Let us take a stroll through the fair grounds and linger a moment at a few of the points of greatest interest. We will first visit the mechanical department and hold communion with the world's greatest thinkers.

You are now attending a congress of the mental giants in mechanical science of all ages. They are addressing you in tongues of iron and steel and in language mute and powerful tell an eloquent story of the world's progress. The inventive geniuses are the most valuable farm hands we have and they perform an enduring service to mankind. We can all help others for a brief period while we live, but it takes a master mind to tower into the realm of science and light a torch of progress that will illuminate the pathway of civilization for future generations. The men who gave us the sickle, the binder, the cotton gin and hundreds of other valuable inventions work in every field on earth and will continue their labors as long as time. Their bright intellects have conquered death and they will live and serve mankind on and on forever, without money and without price. They have shown us how grand and noble it is to work for others; they have also taught us lessons in economy and efficiency, how to make one hour do the work of two or more; have lengthened our lives, multiplied our opportunities and taken toil off the back of humanity.

They are the most practical men the world ever produced. Their inventions have stood the acid test of utility and efficiency. Like all useful men, they do not seek publicity, yet millions of machines sing their praises from every harvest field on earth and as many plows turn the soil in mute applause of their marvelous achievements.

FARMER RADFORD ON WOMAN SUFFRAGE

The home is the greatest contribution of women to the world, the hearthstone is her throne. Our social structure is built around her, and social righteousness is in her charge. Her beautiful life lights the skies of hope and her refinement is the charm of twentieth century civilization. Her grace and her power are the cumulative products of generations of queenly conquest, and her crown of exalted womanhood is jeweled with the wisdom of saintly mothers. She has been a great factor in the glory of our country, and her noble achievements should not be marred or her hallowed influence blighted by the coarser duties of citizenship. American chivalry should never permit her to bear the burdens of defending and maintaining government, but should preserve her unsullied from the allied influences of politics, and protect her from the weighty responsibilities of the sordid affairs of life that will crush her ideals and lower her standards. The motherhood of the farm is our inspiration, she is the guardian of our domestic welfare and a guide to a higher life, but directing the affairs of government is not within woman's sphere, and political gossip would cause her to neglect the home, forget to mend our clothes and burn the biscuits.

RURAL SOCIAL CENTERS

We need social centers where our young people can be entertained, amused and instructed under the direction of cultured, clean and competent leadership, where aesthetic surroundings stir the love for the beautiful, where art charges the atmosphere with inspiration and power, and innocent amusements instruct and brighten their lives.

To hold our young people on the farm we must make farm life more attractive as well as the business of farming more remunerative. The school house should be the social unit, properly equipped for nourishing and building character, so that the lives of our people can properly function around it and become supplied with the necessary elements of human thought and activity.

Education is a developing of the mind, not a stuffing of the memory. Digest what you read.

Old men have visions, young men have dreams. Successful farmers plow deep while sluggards sleep.

The growing of legumes will retard soil depletion, and greatly add to its power to produce.

A Personal Statement.

There are so-called "honey and tar" preparations that cost the dealer half as much but sell at the same price as the original and genuine Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. We never offer these imitations and substitutes. We know you will buy Foley's whenever you need a cough syrup if you once use it. People come long distances for the true FOLEY'S—over thirty years the leading remedy for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, bronchitis and la grippe coughs. SECOND EPISODE.

In Pursuit of the Runaway Bride

CHAPTER I.

THE runaway bride, who led the chase, seemed to be lucky, for the traffic opened before her like magic and closed behind her like a wall. As she turned into Central park at Fifty-ninth street, safe from immediate pursuit, the black Vandyked man's car was in a snarl at Fifth-sixth. As he came out of that pocket he leaned forward, after a look ahead, and spoke crisply to his driver. They stopped at the Plaza hotel, and the man, hurrying up the steps, suddenly paused. With a smile he drew from his pocket a tiny gold watch and opened it. Inside the lid was the picture of a beautiful young girl with a handsome collar. The black Vandyked man gazed at the picture for a moment in frowning meditation. It was the runaway bride.

As he entered the hotel Ned's taxi, with the fluttering white ribbons, passed and turned into the park just as June Warner turned out of it at Seventy-second street, heading for Riverside drive.

At that hour Iris Blithering sat pouring her voluble sadness into the ears of Bobbie in the Blithering home on Riverside drive. She had been school day chum and the bosom friend of June Moore, but now there was no June Moore, only a June Warner, and June Warner might become a stranger. "Rot," observed Bobbie. "How long are they going to be gone?"

"Three weeks. It's an eternity, Bobbie!"

"Rot," said Bobbie. "Why doesn't somebody answer that doorbell?"

It had only just rung, and immediately the hollow Blithering butler came through. He did not return to announce any one, however. Instead the caller rushed straight in and threw herself into the arms of Iris.

"June!" Blithering stood by and watched the tableau for a moment; then he went to the door and looked out.

"Where's Ned?" he quite naturally inquired.

The only answer was a sob.

"June!" pleaded Iris, "where's Ned?"

"I—I left Ned!" June wailed. "I ran away!"

"Aw, I say!" protested Bobbie.

"What did he do, dear?" This from Iris.

"He—he gave me money!"

"He gave you money?" Iris repeated.

The Black Vandyked Man.

this humbly after awhile. "Did you say he gave you money?"

"Yes," June straightened up as she recognized the difficulty which lay before her. Iris, while a warm and loyal friend, was not exactly thoughtful person nor a sensitive one and might perhaps not understand the deep ethical significance of what had happened. Bobbie didn't count.

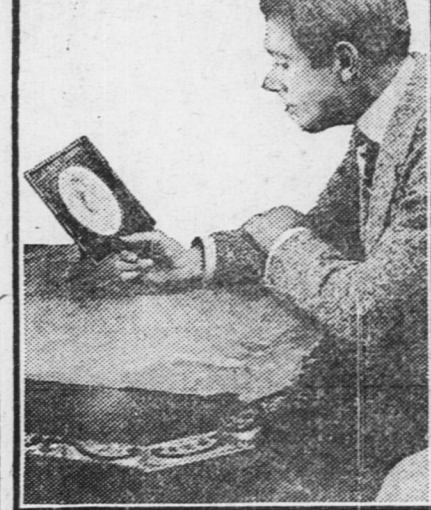

"Just after the wedding breakfast mother gave me a purse, and if I had not left that on the library table at home I might not have known my predicament until it was too late. When Ned and I were on the train, however, I missed the purse. While I was telling Ned about it he tipped the porter a dollar in his nice, cheery way; then he turned around and gave me $30—in just the same way! Don't you see? And she shuddered with the recollection of her humiliation. "Then I had a dream," went on June, with more vigor, bound now to make them understand. "I saw myself being paid for being a wife, as mummy pays the servants and Ned pays his stenographer. I saw Ned giving me money as he gives it to beggars! I saw myself always holding out my hand for charity!" And she was a most pathetic little figure as she upturned her palm. "I couldn't stand it. So I threw down the $30 and slipped off the train and came back."

"But you had no money?" said Iris.

"I got on the train anyhow and sold my watch to a funny old lady," June explained. She paused to remember something—the black Vandyked man who now had her watch. He had bought it from the old lady on the train, so that June could some day redeem it. That was very nice of him.

He Caught Up the Portrait and Pressed it to His Lips.

She had his card and was reaching for it when she noticed that Iris had gone to the telephone.

"You caught the telephone anybody?" the runaway bride insisted. "You would be betraying my confidence."

"But what do you intend to do?"

"What about Ned?" Bobbie suddenly blurted, the thought of young Warner, then we can walk together hand in hand—in mutual self respect and acceptance from each other nothing but love!

"Ned's a darling!" And June's lip quivered. "He's an angel! But I cannot be a burden to be carried on Ned's back. I shall stay away from Ned until I achieve my independence. Then we can walk together hand in hand—in mutual self respect and acceptance from each other nothing but love!"

"It is for his happiness as well as for mine," June insisted firmly. "The world will not be happy until women walk in strict equality with men, Iris, dear." She saw by the face of her friend that cold logic was wasted. The two girls walked upstairs, and Iris ushered her still bosom friend into a cozy little guest room.

Meanwhile Ned Warner began to be familiar with the bronze panther on the overhanging rock in the park and, casting back in his memory, reflected that he must have passed it about five times.

But why had June married him? Why had she walked down the aisle of the Brynport chapel with him that morning? Perhaps the black Vandyked man was married, and marriage was the only road to June's freedom.

He could stand the train of thoughts no longer. He whirled up Riverside drive, past the very house where June was then talking to Iris and turned his key in the lock of the place which was to have been home. Home! And this was his return! Here were all the furnishings which they had bought together. Here had clustered all his dreams of happiness.

It must be his task to find that man! June was still June—and his June! He caught up the portrait and pressed it to his lips and held it in his arms and sank down by the bed sobbing.

At that moment June and Iris were sitting in the big walnut paneled library, and Bobbie wandered in. When he saw the girls he started back.

"Don't go, Bobbie!" called Iris. She walked straight up to him and held out her hand. "Produce!"

"What's the price?" he asked.

"Oh, a hundred."

"How did you guess my roll?" inquired the cheerful Bobbie, dragging up a handful of bills with nonchalant ease, at which June smiled in spite of her embarrassment. She had always been amused at the matter of fact and open way in which these two discussed finances. Bobbie counted his money and held back a fragment of it. "Here's a hundred, and I'm seven to the good."

"Oh!" gasped June as the significance of the tableau suddenly dawned upon her. Why, they were almost in the same position in which she had seen herself when she was Ned's pitiful little beggar.

"Thanks, Bobbie," said Iris and turned to June. "If you want more, honey, in your struggle for independence, come right back, and I'll make Bobbie give it to us."

June shrank away. "Oh, I can't possibly take it! I didn't know you were going to ask Bobbie!"

"Where else do I get it?" blurted the bosom friend. "Bobbie's the easiest way."

"That's just it," June pointed out. "Can't you see what a beggar a dependent woman is? Don't you see that if I can't accept a gift of money from my husband I can't possibly let you accept for me a gift of money from your husband? Don't be angry, Iris, please. I'm fighting for a principle."

"Oh, Mr. Thomas Rot!" exploded Bobbie.

"That attitude is at the bottom of the whole thing, Bobbie," argued June, with spirit. "Because the man has supported the woman for ages he has made himself the master. That destroys the woman's self respect, and love dies."

"She's a fine kid," said Bobbie heartily, "but if she's going to draw the line on money which has been handed from a man to a woman she'll have to get it fresh from the mint."

"What will you do, June?" fretted Iris.

"If I only had that purse mummy gave me," mused June.

"She got that from your father," Bobbie was unkind enough to remind her.

"Oh, that was daddy's money," she brightly replied, no trace of concern on her brow, "and it's the last I can take from them now that I'm married. Iris, couldn't you go out to the house and say you'll send it to me?"

"Just the thing!" Iris was bubbling immediately with enthusiasm. "We'll go right out now. Bobbie, call the car."

"You mustn't let them know I'm here," warned June. "You mustn't let any one know!"

"Within five minutes Iris and Bobbie in the swift little runabout were headed for Brynport. In the library June had found a picture of Ned among some other intimate photographs, and it was with constant reference to this and amid constant talking to it and constant caressing of it that she penned her important message:

My Poor, Dear Boy—I cannot explain in a letter what happened today. When I am free, dear Ned, I will make you understand and forgive. You must not try to find your unhappy bride, JUNE.

CHAPTER II.

AUNT DEBBY came around the corner of the Moore house in all her glory—stiff lavender dress with the red posies on it, yellow hair with the green feather, tan shoes and blue stockings.

"Howdy, Aunt Debby!" Bobbie Blithering, with his chattel beside him, swung up the drive in his fast little runabout.

June's parents came to the door, and J. Moore in the blue and tan smoking jacket which he had refused to wear until tenderness at June's approaching departure had brought him to it, and Charlotte Moore in the gray silk dress embroidered by June's own hands.

"Come right in," heartily invited Father Moore, and Mother Moore, with soft eyes, shook Bobbie by one hand and Iris by both.

"We have only a minute to stay," began Iris, starting to talk as they went into the library. "I heard from June." Iris then turned on Father Moore, in the parlor, came straight over.

"She missed her purse," glibly went on Iris, while Bobbie eyed her with admiration. "She's afraid she lost it. Did she leave it here?"

"Right on that table," And Mrs. Moore's eyes sparkled. She took it from a drawer in a desk.

"That girl always was careless about money," laughed Mr. Moore as if it were a virtue.

Bobbie glanced at Iris. She was as serene as a plate of ice cream.

"I'll send it to her," offered Iris, and Mrs. Moore smilingly put it in her hand.

"Why didn't June wire us?" puzzled Father, his fists bulging in the pockets of his gray smoking jacket.

"Yes, why didn't she?" Mother's voice was full of anxiety, but as she saw the untroubled expression of Iris Blithering's face she began to bridle.

If June could wire her friend, why couldn't she wire her mother?

"You have such slow delivery out here," promptly explained Iris.

"Just what did she say?"

Iris cast her eyes to the ceiling and began telling off the words on her fingers.

"Phone mother I can't find my purse. Did I forget it? Extremely happy. Bushels of love to all. June."

Twenty minutes were all the callers could spare. They drove down the boulevard. A taxicab flashed by them, but they did not notice it. Ned Warner was in the taxi, and he was out and up on the porch before the taxicab had come to a full stop. John Moore answered the bell, and he stood as if petrified when he saw his son-in-law's expression.

"Have you heard from June?" huskily Ned.

"I don't see with you?" The voice of Mrs. Moore was strained and tense.

Mrs. Moore came hurrying out, her face ashen.

"June!" she cried. She ran down to the taxi and peered in through the open window. She came running back and caught Ned by the arm. "Where is my girl?"

"Then she isn't here?" gasped Ned.

"Come inside." John Moore's voice had lost all its color. He led the way into the library. "Now, what is all this about? Why are you here alone?"

"I don't know. June is somewhere in New York. I was in hopes you had heard from her."

"We did! She telegraphed to Iris that she had lost her purse. Iris left here with it to mail it to June."

"Then that's where she is!" There was relief in Ned's voice.

"Sit down," said Moore. "Why are you not with her?"

"I don't know." There was a choke in Ned's voice. "She left me on the train—slipped away at Farnville."

"She wouldn't do such a thing without good cause!" declared Mrs. Moore with firm conviction.

"What happened?" This sharply from Moore.

"I don't understand. She told me she lost her purse. I gave her some money, and she went to sleep with her head on my shoulder. I pilloved her more comfortably on the seat by and by and went into the smoker. I drove in to look at her about every five minutes, and when I came back after we had passed Farnville she was gone. She left the money on the seat. Here it is." And he showed them the three crumpled bills, one partly torn.

"How do you know she returned to New York?" demanded Moore.

"I saw her. I got off at the next station and telephoned. The station master at Farnville reported that he saw her getting on a down train. I took an express and overhauled her as we came into the Grand Central station. I saw her leave the station and get into a taxi."

"You are holding something back!" Moore charged. "I want to know the truth!"

"You have all I can tell you," declared Ned. He would not tell them about the black Vandyked man, and June was Mrs. Warner now.

"Will you get your wraps, please, Charlotte?" June's father finally said, and rose. "We are going to Iris. I'll order the car."

They were grim and silent as they sped away.

While they rode the black Vandyked man, in Sherry's, sat at the end of a long table between a jovial host with a gray mustache and a ponderous man with heavily lidded eyes and short hair.

There were a dozen placed at the table, and wine hissed at every plate, but the others of the party, which included a half dozen vivacious and gayly gowning young women, were dancing. The three men talked in low tones, their heads bent together, and the black Vandyked man was the most silent. Finally he began to talk and grew enthusiastic, and presently he drew forth June's little gold watch. Then he flashed open the lid. All three men bent eagerly over it. They gazed upon the lovely features of the runaway bride, their faces bent close together. They clapped the black Vandyked man on the shoulder.

It was during this time that June Warner, sitting quietly in a corner of the library with Bobbie and Iris and with her mother's purse still in her hand, heard a familiar voice in the vestibule.

"Daddy!" She dashed from her chair in a flash and went upstairs to her room.

"Where's June?" Mrs. Moore had pushed through ahead of the men.

John Moore walked straight to Bobbie Blithering and shook an awe-inspiring finger at that young man.

"Where's my girl?" he demanded.

Bobbie slowly straightened.

"Well, she's here," he said. "What of it?"

"I'll tell you what of it!" said Iris. "June has decided not to see any of you just yet, and she won't!"

"Iris," begged Mrs. Moore, "what does it all mean?"

Iris took two letters from the mantel. She gave one to Ned and one to Mrs. Moore.

"Why are you here alone?"

Moore. Her husband looked over her shoulder. The letter was addressed to Ned.

Dear Daddy and Mummy—I cannot explain in a letter why I was compelled to leave Ned. Some day I will make you understand and forgive. Please be good to dear Ned and love

YOUR LITTLE JUNE.

"Here's the man!" shouted Ned, his voice full of sudden fury. He held a pair of gloves in one hand and a card in the other. "These are June's gloves. They were lying on the table, and this card was in them!"

"They're my gloves!" called Iris, but Ned laughed at her. There was no mistaking those dainty, blue embroidered bits of white kid.

"Now, I'll tell you," went on Ned. "This man, Gilbert Blye, whose name I now know for the first time, was with her from the moment she left me until she came here. He is a tall, black Vandyked man, and at Farnville he was seen assisting June on the down train."

Through the car window talking together. I want to find Gilbert Blye! Are you hiding him too?" And he turned savagely on Iris.

Bobbie lounged forward. "That'll do, Ned," he warned. "Iris, call June my girl!"

"June!" They heard Iris throwing doors open and running through the house, calling June. Ned darted up the stairs, but in the hall Iris met him with a frightened face. "She is gone!" They all searched for her, but there was no trace of her.

CHAPTER III.

MRS. GILBERT BLYE was in shrill voiced converse with a big green parrot, which, from length and sharpness of nose and height of eye arches, might have been a sister to her. A maid announced that some one had wanted to see Mr. Blye, and, since he was not at home, would Mrs. Blye care to say where he was? He came to New York on an early train.

She rose instantly. She sailed straight into the hall and confronted the five earnest visitors. "Did you say Mr. Blye returned on an early train?"

"Yes," Ned tried not to speak curtly. "I saw him."

"I am Mrs. Blye. Is there anything I can do for you?" The lady was studying the group with a shrewlike penetration. Mrs. Blye began to worry herself. Also she began to suspect that that was her specialty. "If you will tell me the nature of your business with Mr. Blye I may be able to locate him."

"I want my daughter!" blurted out John Moore, his lips quivering.

"Oh!" And Mrs. Blye's voice rose for a moment. "Will you please wait?" she asked and sailed back through the hall. They could hear her sharp voice telephoning. She had called her husband's club, and they heard her exclaim indignantly, "Where's Sherry's?"

She was back, blazing. She had her hat in her hand. "He's at Sherry's!"

Mrs. Gilbert Blye Was in Shill Voice

Converse With a Big Green Parrot. She shrilled.

An electric coupe stood at the door. She slammed into that, turned on the lights and rolled away with as much vigor as was in the capacity of her machine. Bobbie's runabout darted after her and passed her and then came the limousine with Mr. and Mrs. Moore and Ned.

Poor June! It had been hard for her to leave these beloved voices down stairs, but she had made up her mind very firmly that neither she nor Ned could be happy if she was always to feel that she was a chattel. She ran back to the desk for Ned's photograph, then stepped lightly out on the tiny side porch, jumped down to the little embankment and fled, as light as a thistle-down, along the side of the house and out at the little grocer's gate.

Where now should she go? The apartment, their home, her father and Ned's! She hurried up in that direction, but at the first corner she stopped for an instant and darted over toward Broadway. She had realized three things almost simultaneously—first, that they might come out of the Blithering house at any instant and see her; second, that she had no key and, third, that Ned might come there. It would be the most likely place for him to go in his loneliness.

In fond memory, stopping at the first corner, she went over each of the dear rooms—the white and gold reception room, the white and gold drawing room, the white and black library, the white and blue bedroom, the all white kitchen. She saw Ned in every room and heard his voice.

Now flushed and happy she was experimenting with the toy range, now they were dining together all alone. She was playfully feeding Ned, and he was seasoning the meal with stolen kisses, winning clear around the table to get them. They were spending an evening of blissful companionship in the library.

She suddenly held her handkerchief to her mouth to choke back a sob. On Broadway she halted a passing taxi.

All was sparkling at Sherry's, but Gilbert Blye had taken small share in the hilarity. He had risen to go when a black eyed young woman, the most vivacious of the party, called him to task for his evening of secret scheming. "You're up to some devilment," she charged, playfully striking his beard. "Come and dance with me."

"Sorry, Tommy," he told her, with that queer smile on his lips, "but I've a previous engagement."

"She can wait," pouted the girl. She dragged Blye away from the table.

"Take my car, Gil!" called the gray mustached host.

"Certainly," replied Blye, and the three men exchanged a smile. "I'll go one round with Tommy; then I'll go."

Before that round was over, however, Gilbert Blye saw an apparition in the doorway, and his face turned cold. The apparition was a tall, angular woman with a long, high nose and high arched brows, who was trying to bore Gilbert Blye through and through with a double eyed glare of burning ferocity. He hurried over to his wife. She had shrilled:

"Who is that woman?" One lean, long finger pointed accusingly at the vicious look of girl with whom Gil had been dancing.

"I shall explain nothing," said Gilbert. "I'm through!"

He left her contemptuously, leaving her stunned by this unexpected revolt. As he went down the steps he heard her shrieking something after him, and he hurried. As he dashed out of the door he ran into a group who were coming in. They were the Moores, the Blitherings and Ned Warner, and he was upon them and past them and jumping into the luxuriously furnished limousine, with the little watch in his hand, before they realized that this was the man they were seeking.

"There he goes!" cried Ned. "The scoundrel!"

Blye, moving rapidly away, saw the confusion and blamed his wife for the scene, for now she was in the lead of the excited group, which was rushing toward him.

The house of the Moores at Brynport was dark when June arrived, the dear old house. It stood back amid the dim trees, with a dignity and beauty which she had never before thoroughly appreciated, and at the gate she hesitated as if, with no one to welcome her, she had no right here.

There was a welcome, though, and a joyous one, a loud, hearty one, a series of delighted barks from her dog Bouncer.

The hole through which he usually emerged had been found and closed, but he wasted no time on that. He crept came through the window, bringing a part of the snub with him, and here he was running circles around her, leaping at her, crouching, barking at the top of his voice, doing everything in his power to show her that she was a welcome visitor at this place and in his heart at any hour of the night or day.

He had known her very presence from far back in the shed.

It was the work of a minute for June to clamber through an unlocked kitchen window and to rush upstairs, get her maid, Marie, seize several garments and drag with her the astounded servant.

"Miss June! Miss June!" cried Aunt Debby, out of breath from running, but June only waved a hand at her as the taxi swept out of the drive.

A limousine had stopped in front of the house, and a black Vandyked man had alighted.

"Miss Moore!" he called, but June taxi rattled on. He jumped in his own car and gave the word and start.

Where Now Should She Go?

ed in swift pursuit.

The two machines were still in sight when the runabout of Bobbie and Iris dashed around the circle.

"Is June here?" called Iris.

"Laudy, no!" puffed Aunt Debby. "Dat's her goin' yonder!"

The runabout was gone with a whizz, and immediately after came the family limousine.

"Is June here?" called all three of the occupants at once.

"She's just gone gone! The gentleman with black whiskers has just done gone! Mr. Bobbie and Miss Iris has just done gone! Whoo!"

Around the corner there rolled an electric coupe. It was brilliantly lighted, and in it sat an angular woman with a high, long nose and high arched brows, beneath which glittered two sharp eyes.

"Say!" shrieked the occupant of the electric.

Aunt Debby, her broad hand on her stomach, pointed down the road.

FACES CHANGE WITH FASHION

Remarkable Transformation to Be Noted as the Styles of the Seasons Vary.

Have you noticed how fashions in clothes and fashions in faces go hand in hand?

For instance, year before last, I think it was, when the vampire face was rampant, the mysteriously pulled down hat completely shadowing the eyes came in vogue. At this time the slim, slit, seductive clothes were worn, and a stranger walking along one of our principal streets must have had the impression that some dread disease had taken hold of nearly all of our young girls.

Next year, a transformation! The vampire shed her slinky garments and sophistication and became the sweetest little chocolate-eating doll with an "oh-what-a-wicked-world!" expression on her pretty little pink-cheeked face. And if you remember rightly it was at this season that the youthful short-waisted dresses, dainty slippers and all sorts of fluffy things appeared.

We seem to have reached a normal condition this season. I have seen more clear-eyed, red-cheeked, healthy-looking girls in the very sanest clothes imaginable, than I can remember seeing for a long, long time. If we could only make the health fad a habit! The clothes are awfully pretty this year, and they cry for a good healthy body and fine carriage to fit them.

If we imitate a thing long and hard enough we must eventually either become that thing or something very near to it. Hence, if we assume a wholesome, normal expression of face and body—don't you see what I mean? And doesn't it make you creep to think of the consequences of having any but the health fad become ingrained?

But I can't decide whether the clothes make the faces or the faces influence the clothes. I think it's only another case of the chicken and the egg.—New York Times.

FULL SKIRT HAS WON PLACE

Not as Yet Fully Adopted, but Many of the Smart Dressers Have Taken It Up.

With the short coat and its military collar the skirt varies, but the full skirt without a tunic claims precedence in the very smartest models and is gradually making itself more and more felt, though for the time mass of winter frocks and suits the long tunic in one form or another will hold good. Paris sponsored the plain full skirt early in the season and the later models emphasize the idea, but the earliest showing here leaned rather to the tunic models, and American women are slow in accepting the newer skirt.

And yet one sees it worn here and there where smartly dressed women congregate, and it is featured more and more prominently in shops of the better class. One afternoon during the American fashion show at the Ritz Carlton, in New York, a group of five well-known actresses happened to foregather on the stairway, and each of the five was wearing a version of the plain full skirt.

SPRING COSTUME

Heavy blue gabardine, trimmed with striped mulin cuffs and collar. Hat: blue velvet with white silk band.

Braids of All Widths. Braids of all widths are worn and many think that the military influence has been responsible for this craze, but it will be remembered that as late as last summer both Worth and Jenny showed models that were braided trimmed.

"I See In the Paper" Is the Way Many Conversations Begin. If Your Advertisement Were There It Would Be Seen Too.

Murmuring Indexing. Indexers have been responsible for many errors, but possibly the strangest example of curious indexing occurs in a law book. Turning over its index, a correspondent of the London Chronicle noted the entry: "Best, Mr. Justice, His Great Mind," and reference to the page brought this: "Mr. Justice Best said he had a great mind to commit the witness for contempt of court."

A woman can take one look at another woman and tell whether she is a real blond or a peroxide affair. But a man has to marry her before he can tell the difference.

The reason a princess knows that she is going to make a grand housekeeper when she gets married is because she can find a handkerchief by passing it on the mirror of her bedroom dresser.

The sort of man who would feel contaminated if his clothes touched yours here on earth is the same lad who is always hoping that he will meet you in heaven.

You can't tell anything about a woman. She will spend two hours roasting her husband and telling him what a no account two cent pup he is until he gets mad and slams the door and goes out. Then she will sit down and write a long letter to her mother and tell her what a grand man her husband is, and how thoughtful and generous he is, and how happy they are.

When one of the children is seriously ill father will tell mother to go to bed and he will stay up. Then father will sit around and read for a few hours and then sneak off to bed. And as soon as mother hears father snoring she will get up and watch the child all night and then prepare breakfast as though nothing had happened. And father will go downtown and go around hunting for sympathy by stating that he didn't get a wink of sleep all night because he had to stay up and nurse a sick child.

Corner Main and Collins Street

Burbank Smith in Demand.

Prof. G. D. Smith, of Eastern Normal, has been called to McCreary county, to lay out a big orchard for the Stearns Coal & Lumber Co. About 25 acres will be set out as a trial orchard.

A Poem by Mr. Stott.

Last Sunday one of Mr. Roscoe Gilmore Stott's poems, which had appeared in an Eastern Normal, for January, was reprinted in full in the New York Sun. A prominent newspaper circuit, with headquarters in Chicago, is to publish a review of "The Man Sings," by Prof. Stott, of the Normal, in 95 newspapers, together with his picture. The author declares this latter feature is hard on the standing of the press, but means publicity.

Cut This Out Now.

If you don't want it today, you may next week. Send this advertisement and 5 cents to Foley & Co., Chicago, Ill., writing your name and address clearly. You receive in return three trial packages—Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs, colds, croup and grippe; Foley's Kidney Pills, for weak or disordered kidneys or bladder; Foley Cathartic Tablets, a pleasant, wholesome and cleansing purgative, just the thing for winter's sluggish bowels and torpid liver. These well known standard remedies for sale by all dealers.—Adv. Feb.

Helm Speaks.

During general debate on the Agricultural Bill, Mr. Helm, of the 8th Kentucky district, addressed the House on some length and among other things stated that the farmer, like the lawyer, doctor and all other professional men, must keep abreast of the times by application of strict business methods. He showed any number of instances how better returns could be obtained on the same amount of land with less labor and expense.

The speech was brim-full of good suggestions and ideas on improved methods of farming and stock raising, stating instances of three crops in one season as one of the ways of supporting large families on small farms. He said that 20,000,000 men under arms in Europe have to be fed from American products; suggesting "full steam ahead" by way of great energy and larger acreage, suggesting the getting away from tobacco and less acreage for next season on account of its injury to the soil and the demoralization of the foreign market, due to the foreign war.

Song of The Leaders of Kentucky.

The following beautiful song was written by Miss Lella E. Partridge, Supervisor of Practicing and Teaching at the Normal, and will be read with interest by her circle of admiring friends:

Air: "We're Teating Tonight on the Old Camp Ground."

We're thinking today of our dear old State Of what it has been in the past; Of the record high its history shows, Of the glory that record cast.

Many are the names we're proud of today—

Kentucky's roll of fame, Many were the leaders in days of old, And we cherish each great name.

Refrain—We're thinking today, talking today,

Singing of our dear old State, We're thinking today of our dear old State How it fell from its high place,

How it lost its step on the onward march, How it took the laggard's place.

Many were the years that it lingered behind,

While forward the great world swung their lives, While forward the great world swung their lives,

To bare existence clung, Refrain—We're thinking today, grieving today,

Mourning for our dear old State, We're thinking today of our dear old State Of its future, not its past,

For the children's cry hath snapped the spell, Kentucky roused at last.

Many are the minds that are working today—

Minds that can will and plan; Many are the souls that are eager to serve,

And uplift the children of men, Refrain—We're planning today, working today, Praying for our dear old State—Lella E. Partridge.

CAUSE FOR ALARM

Catarrah a Danger Sign. Hyomei The Remedy—Guaranteed By B. L. Middleton.

There is no more annoying, likewise serious ailment than catarrah, which is indicated by sniffing, raising of mucus and frequent colds. If it is not cured it will surely affect the lining of the air passages, and frequently destroys the hearing.

Hyomei is the effective and reliable remedy for all catarrah ailments—you breathe it, using a small inhaler that comes with every complete outfit. The anti-septic medication of Hyomei simply has to reach all the sore, raw and inflamed surfaces of the air passages. Its healing begins at once—you feel better after the first treatment—even almost hopeless cases respond quickly. Hyomei is inexpensive, and surely gives quick and permanent benefit. B. L. Middleton sells it on the "No-cure-no-pay" plan. You certainly can afford to try this harmless remedy when there is nothing to pay if not benefited.—Adv. Feb. 3-10.

BRUTUS WHITE.

Died, at his home in Madison county, Kentucky, on the Barnes Mill pike, four miles west of Richmond, on Sunday, January 17, 1915, Bro. Brutus White, having lived to a good old age. Just as soon as Richmond Lodge, No. 25, was informed of his death, the Worshipful Master appointed a committee, composed of Bros. W. Crutcher, T. T. Covington and D. B. Shackelford, to prepare and present suitable resolutions in regard to the life-work and character of our deceased brother. Bro. White was born in Madison county in the month of May, 1829, consequently would have attained to the advanced age of 86 years the coming May. Truly Bro. White has come his grave in a full age, like as a "shock of corn cometh in his season."

Bro. White was made a Mason at Kingston Lodge in early manhood and retained membership in said Lodge until a year or so ago, when he took membership with Richmond Lodge No. 25, and though enfeebled by years and denied the privilege of regular attendance upon the stated meetings, he never lost interest in Masonic teachings and the principles which it inculcates. He was familiarly and reverently called "Uncle Brutus" by his friends and neighbors. Bro. White imbibed the cardinal virtues of Free Masonry early in life and retained and practiced them during his long and useful life. Especially was he temperate in speech. He had no patience with gossip or scandal-mongers and all such victims found in Brother White a charitable defender. He was a remarkably well-balanced man and his counsel and advice was frequently sought by his friends and neighbors. In his home life he was a faithful and devoted husband and father and a widow, three sons and five daughters remain to mourn his loss. To these we extend our sincere sympathy.

Brother White was buried with Masonic honors by the Richmond Lodge on Monday, Jan'y 18, 1915, in Richmond Cemetery, and though it was a very disagreeable day, as in life, so in death, he was honored by a large crowd of brethren and friends at both the funeral and burial services.

RESOLVED: That this paper be read at the next regular meeting of Richmond Lodge No. 25 and that they be spread upon the minutes of said Lodge and that the Richmond papers be requested to publish same, and that a copy be sent to the widow and each son and daughter of our deceased Brother.

Done by order of Richmond Lodge No. 25, January 27, 1915.

W. T. Crutcher, Committee.

D. B. Shackelford.

A Great Sunday Night Service At Christian Church!

Last Sunday evening, despite the inclement weather, another large group of the members of Mr. Turley's class was present and added much to the interest of the service. Apart from them a good sized congregation was present. The pastor spoke on "The Man Who Lost His Grip," and gave an account of the life of Eli, the prophet. These services are creating a great deal of interest.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Our young friends, Matt Cohen and R. P. Fox, Jr., have formed a co-partnership. The firm will handle trotters, saddlers and team horses.

Our neighboring city of Lancaster has caught the fever and will have a graded school in the near future. A special election will be held to elect a board of trustees Feb. 9. We congratulate the city on its prospects.

Harvey Cobb, of Red House, has been seriously ill with pneumonia, but we are glad to state that he is about well and will be in town in a few days with a number of good jokes that he has been fixing up while he was sick and had little else to do. Harvey is good for 25 years or so yet. We can't do without him.

Henry Reddick and wife, colored, were arrested at Lancaster Friday last charged with burning the Hotel Miller, New York city, in which E. A. Pascoe, his child and mother-in-law, Mrs. Masters, were burned to death. Public opinion has believed all the time that it was the work of an incendiary and a detective was engaged to investigate the crime.

John L. Alverson and Miss Maude Marshall, of Washington, D. C., were married Saturday last as per announcement made by our contemporaries. The bride is the daughter of Col. T. R. Marshall, proprietor of the Loekean Hotel, Washington. The groom is a Richmond boy, who started in life as a printer in the Register office. He now holds a position in the Government printing office. He has a brother with the Stanford Interior Journal, who was once a compositor in the Climax office. We join with the Register in wishing them a "happy journey over sunlit seas."

PERSONAL.

Miss Sue McRoberts, of Danville, is a guest of Miss Julia Higgins.

Capt. W. H. Adams, Superintendent of the R. N. I. & B., returned home on Sunday from a trip to Omaha and Chicago.

Hugh Riddell, of Irvine, and D. B. Shackelford, of Richmond, were registered at the Willard Hotel, Louisville, last week.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Christian church held a social at the residence of R. E. Turley Friday night.

Colds are Often Most Serious—Stop Possible Complications.

The disregard of a cold has often brought many a regret. The fact of sneezing, coughing, or a fever should be warning enough that your system needs immediate attention. Certainly Loss of Sleep is most serious. It is a warning given by Nature. It is a man's duty to himself to assist by doing his part. Dr. King's New Discovery is based on a scientific analysis of Colds. See at your Druggist. Buy a bottle to-day.—Adv. Feb.

A TEXAS WONDER.

The Texas Wonder cures kidney and bladder troubles, dissolves gravel, cures diabetes, weak and lame backs, rheumatism, and all irregularities of the kidneys and bladder in both men and women. Regulates bladder troubles in children. If not sold by your druggist, will be sent by mail on receipt of $1.00. One small bottle is two months' treatment, and seldom fails to cure a case. Send for testimonials from this and other states. Dr. E. W. Hall, 2926 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo. Sold by druggists.

Moonlight Schools.

We have received a lengthy communication from Madame Piotrowska, principal of the Moonlight School, giving in detail the beginning, the conduct and the conclusion of the school which was conducted in this city. The same is too long for publication in this issue, and we give excerpts from the same.

First, the city school board offered the school building for the use of this school. Second, the registration was not what it was expected to be, but there was a general average attendance of about 25. This work was divided into two departments—the elementary and the advanced—and also a department of Domestic Science.

The school closed Dec. 11th, much to the regret of pupils and teachers, both regular and temporary, who had devoted themselves to this noble work.

Arrangements have been made whereby the school will be continued, and the rooms have been generously donated to it by Mrs. James Bennett and are located over Perry's drug store. The same will be furnished by using the chairs of the Woman's Club and other equipment will be added by Oldham & Lackey, Owen McKee and the Normal Training Department. Mr. D. B. Shackelford contributed some hardware and Mrs. L. R. Blanton a cart-load of coal. The material for the Domestic Science department has been donated by Mr. Allen Zaring, Owen McKee, Joe Giunchigliani, Covington & Tharpe, McKinney & Deatherage, R. H. McKinney, E. S. Higgins, Mrs. S. B. Hume and Mrs. L. R. Blanton.

The social feature of the school has been well cared for by Miss E. French, Mrs. I. Hugely, Mrs. G. D. Smith, Mrs. J. G. Crabbe and Miss Emma Watts. The regular list of teachers was occasionally assisted by some of the ladies of the city.

The communication concludes with this paragraph: "All beginnings is humble, but the right thing begun in the right way always grows. In fact one good thing grows from another. The pay night school class has just tonight $2.50 away from humanity, for they are pessimists and see through a 'glass darkly.' Why? Because mental states depend upon physical states. Illness, nervousness, Headaches, Dizziness and Constipation disappear after using Dr. King's New Life Pills. 25c, at your Druggist, —Adv. Feb.

The Liver Regulates The Body. A Sluggish Liver Needs Care.

Some one has said that people with Chronic Liver Complaint should be shut away from humanity, for they are pessimists and see through a "glass darkly." Why? Because mental states depend upon physical states. Illness, nervousness, Headaches, Dizziness and Constipation disappear after using Dr. King's New Life Pills. 25c, at your Druggist, —Adv. Feb.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running ear, which discharges a sticky mucus. It is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. It is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. To Our Absent Madisonians.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, we still have an interest in you. Let the home folks hear from you through our columns. You cannot write to all of us, but your letter in this paper will be read by all of us. Tell us of yourself, your children and grand-children. The tiny tot, just cutting a "tooty," has a place in our hearts.

To you, one and all, greetings. May the New Year bring to you much happiness and prosperity!

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

Madison National Bank for Benefit of Will Alexander, H. B. Hanger, Pliffs vs. B. F. Hord, Etc.

Under and by virtue of a judgment and order of sale rendered at the May term, 1913, of the Madison Circuit Court in the action of Douglas & Simmons vs. B. F. Hord, Etc., the undersigned Master Commissioner of said Court will, on Saturday, the 6th Day of February, 1915,

on the premises

at 11 o'clock a. m., sell to the highest and best bidder at public auction, the following described tract of land, or so much thereof as will produce the sum of $814.65, the amount of the debt, and costs due Will Alexander and H. B. Hanger. Said land is described as follows:

A certain tract of land situated on the Richmond and Lancaster turnpike road in Madison county, Ky., and bounded by the lands of Adam Green, White, and Mrs. Elizabeth Irvine, the Lancaster pike, etc., containing 14.68-100 acres; deed to same recorded in Deed Book 61, page 262, reference to which is made.

TERMS—Said land will be sold on a credit of six months time, the purchaser being required to execute a sale bond payable to the Commissioner, bearing 6 per cent interest from date until paid, or purchaser can pay cash if desired. If sold on time, a lien will be retained to secure the payment of purchase money.

When you go home have a nice home to go to

Dear Amy—I don't wonder that Jennie's husband stays down town nights so. She doesn't seem to care a thing about fitting her home. Fred would stay home more, I know, if Jennie would make it more congenial for him. He won't mind giving her the money to buy furniture with either, if she'll only go buy it and keep it looking right when she gets it. All she thinks about is how she looks when she is out—not what her home looks like when Fred is in. Bye, bye Lou

P. S.—Jennie could furnish her home so nicely with first-class furniture and for so little money, too, if she would only visit
